

ANGELA LI

Ms Angela Li is currently the deputy laboratory director in the Food Safety Laboratory of the Health Sciences Authority (HSA). She obtained her Bachelor degree in Applied Sciences from the National University of Singapore and completed her Masters in Chemistry from the University of York in the United Kingdom, through a research collaboration with the Food and Environment Research Agency (FERA, UK). The Food Safety Laboratory in HSA is also the ASEAN food reference laboratory on mycotoxins testing and she has been involved in various developments of analytical methods for the detection of mycotoxins and phytotoxins in food.